About

Anne has been practising in asylum, immigration and human rights since 2000. She has represented appellants at all levels; from the First and Upper Tier Tribunals (Immigration and Asylum Chamber) up to the Court of Appeal. She has experience of conducting judicial review cases, including out of hours injunctions.

Annes practice entails meeting people of different nationalities from diverse cultural backgrounds. She is always able to empathise with her clients without losing objectivity. Anne has given CPD accredited lectures covering a range of topics. She is happy to share her knowledge and experience. Anne is qualified to undertake public access work.

Anne continues to learn new languages and enjoys practising these when on holiday. She is a voracious reader of crime and science fiction/fantasy.
