About

Angela has worked in corporate banks and aviation for over 14 years, negotiating highly complex contracts. She was called to the bar of England and Wales in 2019 and specialises in complex Immigration matters. This includes appeals against refusal, challenging existing case law and third country asylum cases. Bail applications to Judicial review. Often her clients have criminal matters that also need to be dealt with, while their immigration matter is pending, and she has simultaneously managed such cases in the Crown Court. She has conducted defence for assault, possession of drugs, proceeds of crime, deportation matter and drink driving offences. Angela has experience in representing individuals or their spouses/ partners in complex divorce and financial disputes often involving complex justification issues, and separation and cohabitation disputes and private children proceedings. She recognises that every clients circumstances are unique and she is dedicated to providing tailored solutions designed to meet her clients needs. Angela works directly with the clients, drawing on experience, and research to prepare the high-quality application and present my client before immigration courts. She is dedicated to providing expert legal advice and representations.
